MEMORANDUM OF AGREEMENT
PROVIDING FOR TRANSFER OF ACCOUNTABILITY

1. The Central Intelligence Agency agrees:

- a. To relinquish the accountability of its Motorola Microwave stations, presently known as "C", "E", "F", and "U", including all related equipment at each site and including buildings, towers and power equipment.
- b. To the physical relocation of station equipment to other sites, changing of microwave paths, modifications of channel allocations and any other technical detail that will improve or enlarge upon communication capabilities within the Motorola Microwave system.
- c. To furnish the Signal Corps such necessary additional equipment for these stations as is presently available in stock, this transfer to be on a reimbursement basis.

2. The _____ agrees that:

a. The Central Control Station at _____ also known as _____ will meet the Central Intelligence Agency's microwave path from _____ with an equal number of pre-determined microwave radio teletype and voice channels. All radio teletype channels from _____ are to appear on the control panel within the Control Center at _____. The voice channels are to be terminated on the telephone switchboard within the same area.

b. The Inter-Agency Communications Control Officer at the _____ Control station must meet the Central Intelligence Agency's "normal-through" channel requirements from these control boards at that site. Under regular operating conditions, these listed "normal-through" channels will remain as routed through primary paths to their final destinations. Under emergency conditions, interruptions of this primary service must be met by the Control Officer through the re-routing of any affected channels over any of the rapid communication mediums available to the Control Center.

c. Future developments may require addition, deletion or rerouting of presently established CIA channel requirements. The Central Control Officer will take such changes under consideration, and, within the capabilities of the facilities available to him, effectively route any new requirements to final terminating points.

d. Accountability, control, physical possession of all equipment and material, and all sites, building and towers, including all changes, modifications, and improvements which at such time constitute the system transferred under the terms of this agreement, shall immediately revert to and be returned to the Central Intelligence Agency, upon request, on a non-reimbursable basis in any of the following eventualities:

25X1A6a

- (1) Should the policy of "common user" with a Central Control at [REDACTED] for the Inter-Agency Communication System be changed or abandoned.
- (2) Should operational control of the Inter-Agency Communication System be delegated to a commercial enterprise or commercial communication service.
- (3) Should operational control authority over Inter-Agency Communications be allocated to an Agency other than the Department of the Army. (In such an event CIA may, of course, elect to negotiate an agreement with the new agency rather than require return of the system.)
